

Abstract of the Invention

A method for selecting fashion, including cosmetic and clothing, information for an individual. The method includes providing a fashion database that includes complimentary cosmetic information such as cosmetic product data and physical characteristic data. The step of receiving physical characteristic data for at least one individual. The step of comparing the physical characteristic data the individual with said complimentary cosmetic information to identify a selection of cosmetics that are appropriate for the individual and providing the identified information to the individual.

PROVISIONAL PCT/US2007/026260